

With more than 24 years' energy sector experience, Dr Khaled Al Jahwari is Petrofac's Country Manager, Oman. He has a varied background across industry in technical, commercial and management roles, working across the Middle East, Africa and Europe over the course of his career. Dr Al Jahwari holds a bachelor's degree in petroleum engineering from Sultan Qaboos University, as well as an MBA and a PhD from the UK's University of Strathclyde

Dr Al Jahwari has significant leadership experience. In his role as ambassador in-country, he represents the Petrofac Group, working closely with the various parties across the entire Petrofac portfolio, in the ongoing delivery and development of the company's full-service capability offering and operations in Oman.

Prior to joining Petrofac in August 2021, Dr Al Jahwari was Shell's General Manager of Operations in Egypt, having previously been Shell's Global Production Excellence Leader, based in The Hague, Netherlands. Prior to Shell, he spent 15 years with Petroleum Development Oman (PDO), holding a number of key roles.

Dr Al Jahwari has a real passion for the industry and helping shape an effective energy transition in Oman and internationally. He is a key driver in continuing to build Petrofac's sustainable contribution towards creating in-country value for the Sultanate and well respected by his peers for his focus on people and developing young national talent.
